QUESTION OF A SITE FOR THE PROPOSED ENCAMPMENT.

Now that Norfolk has disposed o the ridiculous contention that 'Vir

the ridiculous contention that Virginia Beach is unhealthful, the Richmond newspapers are busy scratching around for new excuses to back up their opposition to the selection of the ocean resort as the site for the proposed State encampment and rifle range. Among other things, one of them gravely points out that when the State millitiamen go into campthey go there to work, not to play, and urges that the proximity of a summer resort would have an undesirable effect upon the soldier boys.

Not even the effort to create the impression than Virginia Beach is infested with disease is more ridiculous than this. With the encampment located a mile from the group of hotels, pavilton and cottages known as Virginia Beach, the citizen soldiers would have the chance, when off duty, to take a salt bath and, perhaps, hear a band, if they strolled along the beach they would see a few people, maybe some pretty girls. Wouldn't this betterible! The poor fellows would never be able to keep their minds upon the art of war, manoeuvers or target practice. The question arises, where in the State shall we find a place so desolate and unattractive that our militiamen may occupy it the club will approve of it exactly in th where in the State shall we find a place so desolate and unattractive that our militiamen may occupy it without danger of having their thoughts distracted from their grim tasks? The mountains won't do, for there the boys might enjoy the scenery. Richmond is sometimes said to be just like a big country village, maybe the soidiers could find nothing but work to do there.

Seriously, the fact that a seaside encampment would give the militiamen an opportunity to enjoy themselves in a way that would be new to a majority of them is an argument in favor of Virginia Beach rath bered that Virginia's citizen soldiers most of them, are young men who are not in a position to leave their work that Mr. Whitney had said. Everything in the interview ment their vacation, and look for-ward to the event with great pleasure, confirms all my declarations." ward to the event with great pleasure, enjoy themselves at the same time. GOVERNOR SWANSON'S CAM-PAIGN SPEECH.

the charges made against the Democratic administration in Virginia by Captain Kent, the Republican candidate for governor. Captain Kent has confined himself to general and vague Democrata have been recklessly exfravagant in spending the people's money. The governor, in his speech delivered at Surry Court House yes-terday, told how the revenue of the cratic party and how the revenue of the state have increased under the Democratic party and how the government put in power by the Democrata has expended a part of these increased revenues in improving roads, rehabilitating and constantly building up the public school system, paying additional public school system, paying additional at pensions to old Confederate soldiers. The day was bright and the cele-and in doing various other things th edound to the honor and material adancement of Virginia.

The governor lays stress upon the fact the that Democratic government has been honest; that in twenty-five years, during which time nearly one aundred millions of dollars have been has been one defalcation—a clerk in the auditor's office committed the offence and he was promtply sent to the penitentiary for it by Democratic uthoritles. He compares this record with that established by the Republians during the brief period they were given power in this State, and when they have been given an opportunity to control in other States. everybody in Virginia knows what Remblican rule dld for this State, but it does no harm to call attention to the facts now and again,

The speech is more than an answer to Captain Kent's vague charges; it is a first class campaign document. The Democratic nominees and party lead-(Payable invariably in advance).
